

Overcoming financial and economic abuse.

Abusers often use financial or economic abuse to maintain control. Withholding money, stealing money, and restricting use of finances are some examples.

Housing. Credit. Savings.
Employment. Assets.

Sometimes this type of abuse is a little harder to identify. Maybe you've not been allowed to get a job, or your partner harasses you at your workplace putting your job at jeopardy?

Overcoming financial and economic abuse can be difficult, but stability is possible. Do you need support to find housing, repair credit, open bank accounts, or save money toward your goals? We also offer nature-based job training and referrals to employers that will honor your safety and healing needs.

How can we support your financial needs and goals, while you reimagine possibility after abuse?
